Get Started

Find resources available from the library's collection.

Looking for a particular book, journal, or newspaper? Full Text Finder is a state-of-the-art knowledge base search service for locating publications in your institution's collection, regardless of publisher or provider. In this video, we will look at the features of Publication Finder, which include search and browse. Please note, the Publication Finder user interface supports web accessibility features and most of functions such as keyboard operability, color contrast, etc. are tested in major browsers.

When a search box is available for facets, you can search for subject terms to apply to refine your search.

The screenshot shows a search interface with a left sidebar for filters and a main area for results. The sidebar includes a 'Filters' section with a close button (X), a 'Limit To' section with a checkmark and 'Peer Reviewed Journals (165)', and a 'Subjects' section with a search box containing 'medicine' and a list of subject categories with checkboxes and counts. The main area shows 'Results: 165' with a 'Clear filters' link and a 'Relevancy' dropdown. Below this, three journal entries are listed: 1. 'Movement & Sport Sciences = Science et Motricite', 2. 'Cancer Science', and 3. 'Toxicological Sciences'. Each entry includes its ISSN, subject terms, and a 'Full Text Access' section with links to full-text providers and their availability dates. Red arrows point from the 'Peer Reviewed Journals' checkbox and the 'medicine' search box in the sidebar to the 'Results: 165' text in the main area.
